As entrepreneurs we often feel like we are on a roller coaster ride. We experience the highs and lows and wonder what it takes to increase the highs and decrease the lows. Without a vision and plan this will be more difficult to attain. Take the emotion out of your circumstances because there is no place for "woe is me". There will always be challenges and embracing these challenges clarifies the issues and helps you to return to your vision.

Not taking responsibility and blaming the economy, your clients, your lack of financial resources, lack of time and other issues is a deterrent to your success.

"Change the way you look at things and the things you look at change." - Wayne Dyer
